PARIS

“At 171, Boulevard de Montparnasse, in front of the Café de la Closerie des Lilas, in the 14th arrondissement of Paris. The driver brought the car to a halt in front of the large café, and M glanced uneasily through the window. But the rain was falling heavily outside, streaming down the car making it impossible for the young woman to see anything between the drops, other than the flickering lights of the café. Are you sure we’re in the right place, Edouard?”
